Information and Experience: Reading Practices in the 1960's Swedish Comprehensive School

Dr Mats Dolatkhah and Dr Anna H Lundh will present initial findings from their three year project Reading, Traditions and Negotiations: Reading Activities in Swedish Classrooms 1967-1969 in which they are analysing a unique material including over 200 Swedish lessons recorded in primary school classrooms in south western Sweden during the late 1960s.

The seminar will focus on how reading as an activity was organised in the classrooms studied and how a culture of reading was negotiated and developed through particular classroom uses of textbooks and other documents.

Additional information about Dr Dolatkhah can be found at [http://www hb se/en/Research/Researchers/Dolatkhah-Mats/](http://www hb se/en/Research/Researchers/Dolatkhah-Mats/)

And about Dr Lundh at [hb se/en/Research/Researchers/Lundh-Anna-Hampson](http://hb se/en/Research/Researchers/Lundh-Anna-Hampson)

EVENT DETAILS

4:00-5:00pm

Wednesday 4 June 2014

School of Information Studies Seminar Room, Building 05

Charles Sturt University

This session will be broadcast and recorded using Adobe Connect: http://connect.csu.edu.au/infostudies-seminar/

If you have never attended an Adobe Connect meeting before, CSU Online Meeting help is available at http://www.csu.edu.au/division/landt/interact/help/adobeconnect.htm

For additional information about the Seminar, please contact

Dr. Kim M Thompson

Phone 02 6933 2808

Email kithompson@csu.edu.au

---

Dr Mats Dolatkhah is Senior Lecturer at the Swedish School of Library of Information Science at the University of Borås, Sweden. In his research, Mats takes an interest in the history of reading as well as reading in the contemporary society. He is especially interested in children’s reading practices during the 1900s, both within and outside formal education.

Dr Anna H Lundh is Senior Lecturer at the Swedish School of Library of Information Science at the University of Borås, Sweden and Senior Research Fellow at the School of Education, Curtin University, Perth, Australia. Anna’s research interests concern children’s reading and information practices, multimodality, and accessible media. Currently, Anna is the First Chief Investigator of two projects in which she and her colleagues are exploring children’s reading activities in contemporary society, as well as historically.